LOS ANGELES ELECTRIC SUNSET

Los Angeles Electric Sunset series of cups was inspired by the time Nicola Atkinson Does Fly spent in Los Angeles while presenting the second phase of her artwork Cup Thoughts for the Los Angeles Municipal Art Gallery as part of the Actions, Conversations & Intersections exhibition. During her stay she noticed the unique nature of the electric poles in Los Angeles, each one showing the process of human activity and decisions over time. There appears to be no format or rules for the wiring, seeming to connect in such an ad hoc way to each other or to the residences and shops.

GLASGOW WALKS

NADFLY's Glasgow Walks series was inspired by people going about their business in Glasgow city centre. The images are devoid of personal history or location, leaving you wondering where are there going and who are there. With every one you find yourself studying the clothes and demeanour, searching for their story and destination. The 20 people are hand drawn and place on hand thrown stoneware cups, with white and green glaze with 14 Karat gold rims.
